"We have to bring back religion in America," said President Donald J. Trump at the Museum of the Bible this morning. "To have a great nation, you have to have religion."

The America Prays initiative invites Americans to rededicate the nation as "one nation under God" by praying collectively for America's leaders, people, and future. The White House encourages citizens to gather weekly in groups of at least ten for one hour of prayer in preparation for the nation's 250th birthday.

"We are grateful to the White House for convening this extraordinary moment and for affirming the enduring role of faith in public life," Miller said. "As Christian communicators, we know that every broadcast, every message, and every prayer carries the power of God's truth to reach hearts and renew our nation for generations to come."

As the nation looks ahead to its 250th anniversary, NRB continues to safeguard the freedom of speech, freedom of religion, and the hope of the Gospel for every American.
