Standing Tall as a Symbol of Hope and Advocacy

Attorney Nicholson is known across Indiana as “The Battery Man”, thanks to his deep understanding and successful defense of criminal battery cases. Over the years, he has built a strong reputation for tenacity in the courtroom and compassion outside of it. His law firm, based in Indianapolis, has been serving clients throughout the state since 2009 — especially those navigating criminal defense, personal injury, and civil rights matters.

His journey from incarceration to the courtroom has made him a powerful voice in the conversation about justice and re-entry. He is an Amazon best-selling author of The Law: From Prison to the Street, an adjunct professor at Indiana University McKinney School of Law, where he teaches Prison Law, and he is a former recipient of PACE services. Now, he is dedicated to giving back.

“When I teach law students about prison law, I don’t just share legal theory — I share lived experience. That’s what makes this work real. That’s what makes second chances more than just an idea — it makes them necessary,” Nicholson added.
