We are pleased and proud to feature leading AI readiness experts from the world's largest and most influential law firms”

Robert Smallwood

Bennett Borden is the Founder & CEO of Clarion AI Partners, a specialty law firm, and one of the few people globally to hold simultaneous credentials as an AI lawyer, data scientist, and AI ethicist. Borden brings unique insight from his background at the CIA, as Chief Data Scientist and Partner at DLA Piper, and through his globally recognized expertise on the legal, technological, and policy implications of AI. His leadership in AI governance and algorithmic bias testing serves clients ranging from technology and insurance to financial services, health, and life sciences, positioning him as a visionary authority on AI's challenges and opportunities.

"We are pleased and proud to feature leading AI readiness experts from the world's largest and most influential law firms," stated Robert Smallwood, conference founder and chair.

Peter Stockburger serves as the Office Managing Partner at Dentons San Diego and is the Global Head of the AI Governance Practice. He also co-leads the firm's Autonomous Vehicle practice, guiding global clients through the evolving landscape of AI risks, data privacy, cybersecurity, and compliance. A widely published author and speaker, Stockburger is renowned for his leadership in developing practical frameworks for responsible AI innovation and for co-authoring "The Future of Global AI Governance," a white paper shaping best practices in this fast-moving field.

Additional experts from major law firms who are presenting include:

- Anthony Diana is a partner in the Emerging Technologies Group at Reed Smith and focuses his practice on commercial litigation, internal and regulatory investigations, electronic discovery and information governance, and data privacy and security.
- Leigh Zidwick CIGO, CIP is Senior Director of Information Governance at the law firm DLA Piper LLP (US). She specializes in partnering with clients and internal teams to develop and implement strategic information governance and records management programs.
