The ITAM Consultant of the Year award honors exceptional expertise and client outcomes in

The SIE Group celebrates Latoya Taylor (ITAM Consultant of the Year finalist) and Katherine Caruso (ITAM Rising Star finalist) for their recognition in the 2025 ITAM Excellence Awards by the ITAM Forum.

Award Finalists:

- Latoya Taylor – ITAM Consultant of the Year
- Katherine Caruso – ITAM Rising Star

"This recognition reflects The SIE Group's commitment to excellence in federal IT asset management," said David Harrington, Managing Partner. "We're incredibly proud of asset management implementation, while the Rising Star Award recognizes emerging talent making significant early-career impact in ITAM. Both awards are highly competitive, with finalists selected based on professional accomplishments, industry contributions, and demonstrated impact.

Both professionals bring extensive experience working with federal agencies on complex compliance requirements, from FISMA frameworks to software licensing audits. Their recognition comes at a time when government IT environments continue evolving rapidly, requiring innovative approaches to asset management, security protocols, and compliance frameworks. "Having two team members recognized at this level speaks to our organization's deep commitment to advancing IT asset management practices in the federal sector," Harrington noted. "This recognition benefits not just our team, but the entire community of federal IT professionals working to build more effective, compliant, and efficient technology programs."
