"In today's content-driven world, studios and creators are raising the bar to impress increasingly sophisticated viewers," said Ryan Wahlquist, Director at MFE Insurance. "These projects might not be feature films, but they still carry big risks, expensive equipment, tight timelines, and creative assets that need protection. That's where DICE insurance becomes essential."

MFE Insurance provides DICE coverage for a wide range of media and video projects, ensuring production teams are protected from pre-production through post. Available across the U.S., each DICE policy is tailored to the size, scope, and budget of the production, helping clients focus on innovation, not liability.
