What Are The Factors Driving The Painting And Wall Covering Contractors Market?

The growth of the painting and wall-covering contractors market is expected to be driven by the rising demand for housing. Housing typically refers to any residential structure built for the accommodation of one or more families. These contractors carry out a range of home maintenance tasks, including coloring of floors, roofs, buildings, and walls. They may also be involved in overseeing and potentially instructing on these tasks. Thus, an upsurge in the housing and dwellings demand simultaneously escalates the requirement for painting and wall-covering contractors. For example, in March 2023, the United States Census Bureau, a primary US-based federal statistical agency, reported that the number of private housing units authorized by construction permits in February 2023 reached 1,524,000 on an annually adjusted seasonal basis, marking a 13.8% rise from the January rate that was adjusted to 1,339,000. Consequently, the mounting demand for housing is stimulating the growth of the painting and wall covering contractors market.

What Are The Prominent Trends In The Painting And Wall Covering Contractors Market?

A significant emerging trend in the painting and wall covering contractors market is the adoption of cutting-edge technological advancements in paintings. Prominent companies in the market are concentrating on the use of such innovatively designed paintings to solidify their market status. As a case in point, PPG Industries Inc., a renowned American firm known for manufacturing specialized materials, coatings, and paints, unveiled their newest product called Copper Armor in April 2022. This revolutionary interior paint, equipped with Corning Guardiant copper technology, can eradicate 99.9% of bacteria and viruses within two hours of exposure. Copper Armor makes use of Corning Guardiant copper ion technology as an additive, which was tested at Dr. Charles Gerba's microbiology lab at the University of Arizona, confirming its constant sanitizing effect on walls and its bacteria-killing property. The recent Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) registration denotes the availability of the first Guardiant-enabled product in the American market.
