"At Evolution, we're committed to building world-class facilities that pair top-notch physical therapy with forward-thinking wellness experiences," said Mike Giunta, CEO of Evolution Physical Therapy. "Flagship brings that ethos to life in Culver City, creating a home for ambitious, health-literate individuals who demand more from their recovery."

More than a clinic, the new space is built to embody strength, possibility, and excellence—combining the energy of a high-end training center with the restorative feel of a spa. Patients will have access to top-tier orthopedic and sports physical therapy, plus a comprehensive slate of wellness and performance amenities, including:

Rejuvenating saunas and cold plunges

A dedicated rock-climbing wall, tailored for climbing athletes

Massage therapy

Pilates private lessons and group classes (mat and reformer)

A hyperbaric chamber for advanced recovery

A fully loaded fitness program with group and private options

Both à la carte services and membership tiers will be available, including a Founding Membership for early adopters.

"We set out to create a clinic that goes beyond rehabilitation," said Dr. Bo Heris, DPT, Co-Founder and Clinic Director. "After more than five years with Evolution Physical Therapy, it's an honor to partner with the team that helped launch my career. This collaboration has been years in the making, and I'm proud to bring a long-held vision to life for this community."

At the heart of Flagship is its team culture: therapists selected for both clinical excellence and a passion for sport, curiosity, and recovery-focused care. The result is a philosophy where science meets spirit—merging evidence-based physical therapy with mindfulness, breath-work, and an East-meets-West approach to healing.

From common rock climbing related finger, wrist, elbow, shoulder and ankle injuries, to knee injuries from soccer, skiing, and running, and injuries stemming from football, gymnastics, weightlifting, soccer, and golf - Flagship Physical Therapy, is going to provide the best return to sport physical therapy treatment in a state of the art facility with physical therapists who were hand picked because of their sports related background.

"Flagship Physical Therapy represents a new standard of care in Los Angeles," added Rachel Horning, Co-Founder and Chief Revenue Officer. "It's about blending excellence in science with the inspiration of possibility—helping people feel stronger, healthier, and ready for whatever's ahead."
