Following a spectacular, sold-out run in
Stuttgart, Germany, TITANIC: The
Artifact Exhibition will open Saturday,
Nov. 1 at Filmpark Babelsberg's
Metropolis Halle in Potsdam, just outside Berlin.

Produced by RMS Titanic Inc. and E/M Group, this world-renowned exhibition has been experienced by over 36 million people worldwide. It is the only exhibition that displays authentic artifacts recovered from the wrecksite of Titanic. These powerful objects, paired with personal stories and stunning room re-creations, offer an intimate experience that connects visitors to the human side of this historic maritime tragedy. Each real artifact tells a story and serves as a witness to the people who lived and perished on board Titanic.

"While the story of Titanic resonates around the world, Germany has unique ties to the legacy of the Ship and her passengers," said Tomasina Ray, President of RMST and Director of Collections. "We're excited to bring this powerful history to Potsdam for the first time through artifacts recovered directly from the wrecksite, as well as re-creations of rooms on board—both of which highlight meaningful connections to this unforgettable voyage."

The exhibition opens on Saturday, Nov. 1 at Metropolis Halle at Filmpark Babelsberg. The venue is easily accessible from Berlin, making it the perfect cultural day out for visitors of all ages.
