EINPresswire.com/ -- — Intelligent Waves \(IW\), a leading IT systems integrator delivering mission-focused solutions to the Department of Defense, is proud to announce that its Chief Executive Officer, Tony Crescenzo, was the featured guest on the Truly Mental podcast, hosted by Joe Smarro and Jesse Treviño of SolutionPoint+. The episode, titled “From the Marines to the Boardroom: Tony Crescenzo on Leadership, Tech, and Mental Resilience,” highlights Crescenzo’s personal and professional journey from his service in the U.S. Marine Corps to leading IW.

Leadership is about staying true to your values under pressure and creating a culture where people feel supported and empowered.”

Tony Crescenzo, Intelligent Waves CEO

In the interview, Crescenzo highlights the importance of building resilient teams, the challenges veterans face when transitioning into civilian careers, and the vital role of mental health support. He also shares insights on how emerging technologies, such as Peak Neuro, LLC, a neuroscience and AI-powered company focused on human performance, play an essential role in mental health. The platform uses proprietary neuroacoustic technology, delivered via a simple mobile app, to stimulate brainwave activity that enhances sleep, builds emotional resilience, and supports trauma recovery. “Unlike traditional talk therapy, Peak Neuro helps users physically process trauma,” Crescenzo notes, positioning the technology as a revolutionary, accessible tool for those struggling with PTSD, TBI, and chronic stress.
