In recent times, there has been a robust expansion in the market size of animal hospitals and veterinary clinics. It's projected to surge from $130.43 billion in 2024 to $140.04 billion in 2025, with a Compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.4%. This upward trend during the historical period was a result of factors such as the growing reach of pet insurance, higher pet-related spending, an increase in animal healthcare costs, and a rise in the number of pets.

Anticipated to experience robust expansion in the coming years, the market for animal hospitals and veterinary clinics is projected to reach $185.26 billion in 2029, growing at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.2%. The factors propelling growth during the forecast period are the rising number of pet owners, escalated consumption of animal-based products, favorable government policies, and an increase in disease frequency among animals. The period will also witness significant trends like the inception of mobile veterinary services, the implementation of digital health records, the application of artificial intelligence in pet care, the innovation of novel animal screening examinations, and a growing focus on e-commerce within the pet care sector.

What Are The Driving Factors Impacting The Animal Hospitals And Veterinary Clinics Market?

There has been a surge in companion pet adoption internationally, contributing to the growth of the animal hospitals and veterinary clinics market. This growth can be attributed to the increased humanization of pets, with more and more pet owners treating their pets as part of their family. Reports from the American Veterinary Medical Association have identified a link between the level of human-animal bond and the amount spent on pets. In the USA, as per the data from the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (ASPCA), approximately 3.2 million shelter animals are being adopted each year. Moreover, a study revealed that Americans spent an estimated $17 billion on veterinary care, including hospital and clinic treatments, and food. Likewise, pet owners in China spent over 5,000 yuan per pet. Due to these trends, it is anticipated that the market for animal hospitals and veterinary clinics will continue to expand in the forthcoming years.
