

Ignacio “Don Nacho” Saavedra Celebrates 107th Birthday Surrounded by Five Generations

GARDENA, PUERTO RICO, September 19, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Ignacio “Don Nacho” Saavedra, born September 11, 1918, celebrated his 107th birthday today in the company of five generations of his family. Known for his sharp memory, 20/20 vision, and vibrant spirit, Saavedra continues to be an example of longevity and vitality.

Born and raised in Puerto Rico, Saavedra dedicated his career to the Department of Agriculture, where he promoted healthy living and nutrition—values that have defined his own life. His commitment to wellness is reflected in his remarkable health even at 107.

The celebration highlighted a unique family milestone, as Saavedra was joined by five living generations: his son Manuel, Manuel’s daughter Sarianna, her daughter SariVictoria, and the newest member of the family, baby Jimena. His daughter Luz also joined in the celebration, along with his step-daughter, Puerto Rican singer Nydia Caro, who has been a beloved figure in Latin music for decades.

Family longevity has long been a hallmark of Saavedra’s lineage—his father lived to 112 and his mother to 104—suggesting that “great genes” run strong in the family.

“Don Nacho’s story is an inspiring reminder of the power of healthy living, strong family bonds, and resilience,” said family members during the gathering.
