Amidst the visual kaleidoscope of German Carnival lies its beating heart—the music. A medley of traditional tunes and contemporary beats, the soundscape of Carnival is as integral to the festivities as the parades and costumes. It is the music that sets the tempo of the celebration, inviting you, the reveler, to step into the dance of a community united in festivity.

From the swelling brass bands that energize the parade routes to the boisterous sing-alongs in packed beer tents, the music of Carnival is diverse and pervasive. In the Rhineland, you'll find yourself swept up by the infectious rhythms of 'Karnevalsmusik.' This genre, specific to the season, mixes local folk melodies with pop and rock, creating an eclectic soundtrack that can get even the most reluctant of dancers tapping their feet.

“The Krewe of Europa has been fortunate to celebrate across the America's and Europe in many parades and carnivals, but are now setting their eyes on Cottbus Germany to appear in front of thousands of carnival spectators and to witness the unique 'Zampern,' a traditional Lusatian custom part of the Sorbs' Carnival celebration, according to Karen Bachler, President of the Krewe of Europa.

Accompanied by music, participants go from house to house collecting eggs, bacon, and money to prepare for the big parade. It's a fascinating blend of Slavic and German Carnival customs, offering insight into the multicultural tapestry of the region.
