EINPresswire.com/ -- Billboard-charting, Canadian country artist Aaron Bucks is ready to help you cure the seasonal blues with the release of two beach-soaked singles, "Where I'm Home" and "Jump Into The Weekend," out to radio today via play MPE and available on most digital music platforms. Produced by notable

Christian chart-topper and multiple Dove Award nominee Chris August (producer of Keith Urban's "God Whispered Your Name" and chart-topping, "Starry Night" Contemporary Christian artist), the oceanfront two-pack is the first sampling of Bucks' upcoming debut LP, The Life Sessions, due to be released next year.

While it may seem odd to release littoral songs this time of year, Bucks' music is reflective of his time spent in the Southern Caribbean dual-island nation, Trinidad and Tobago. His style has often been referred to as 'Flip Flop' or 'Beach' country, offering fans a musical escape from their daily chaos to an eternal summer and a more laid-back lifestyle.

"It is said that 'island living is the art of finding beauty in simplicity,' but so is songwriting," explains Bucks, "I write about what I know and love. My music is pretty much straight-forward country--relatable, but with an island influence."

Bucks' previous commercial releases, "California" and "I Got You," have both landed on the Billboard Christian chart, with the latter earning regular rotation on Kenny Chesney's No Shoes Radio on SiriusXM.
