Partnership Highlights

AI-Driven Personalization

LMS Portals leverages AI to automate administration, personalize learner experiences, and streamline training delivery across branded portals. Paired with SkillDirector's Self-Directed Learning Engine (SDLE), competency models, and gap analysis tools, organizations can create intelligent, role-based pathways that target exactly where skills need to improve.

"SkillDirector has always focused on helping organizations make competencies actionable," said Dwight Crain, Partner at SkillDirector. "By pairing our models and Self-Directed Learning Engine with LMS Portals' AI-driven compliance and credential management platform, we're giving organizations a way to close skill gaps and prove readiness at the same time."

Compliance & Credential Management

LMS Portals provides built-in compliance tracking, credential issuance, and certification renewal management. By layering SkillDirector's real-time skill gap analytics, companies can link compliance to verified workforce competencies—ensuring learners are not only compliant but also capable.

End-to-End Workforce Readiness

The joint solution delivers a closed loop: organizations define and assess critical competencies with SkillDirector, deliver and track learning at scale through LMS Portals, and confirm compliance and credential status in real time.

Multi-Tenant Scalability & Branding

LMS Portals enables organizations to launch multiple, private, branded learning environments for employees, contractors, partners, or customers, while SkillDirector ensures each audience follows competency-aligned development plans.

Why This Partnership Matters

Employers today face rising pressure to close skill gaps quickly while also proving compliance and certification validity in regulated industries. SkillDirector equips organizations to define required competencies, assess workforce proficiency, and provide learners with personalized, role-based development plans that drive career growth and organizational agility.

"Compliance and credential management are critical in today's environment, but they only have real value when paired with true competency development," said Steve Brogdon, Founder at LMS Portals. "Partnering with SkillDirector allows LMS Portals to deliver a complete solution that ensures both skills mastery and compliance accountability."

LMS Portals ensures those plans are delivered at scale, supported by AI automation, and tracked with robust compliance and credential management tools. Together, the two companies offer organizations an AI-driven, compliance-ready platform that transforms workforce development into a measurable business advantage.
