We're really excited to introduce a new Episodic program to the festival. We are also adding an award for 'Best Genre/Horror' as we believe this is a trailblazing space in independent film.”

Submissions are currently open in all categories including narrative features, short films, documentary features, and doc shorts, as well as episodic and horror. SLOIFF is an Academy Award® Qualifying Festival for Documentary Shorts.

“We're really excited to introduce our new Episodic program to the festival. Over the last 10 years, the way we tell stories has changed, and we believe that in addition to traditional film formats, episodics have a place in our festival too. Adding this category creates a new opportunity for indie storytellers to showcase their work," said San Luis Obispo International Film Festival Executive Director Skye McLennan. "We are also adding an award for 'Best Genre/Horror.' We have been testing the appetite for this category with our Red Eye Cinema programming over the last five years, and each year the demand for and the quality of the films has increased. We believe this is a trailblazing space in independent film - we want to encourage it and bring new works to our audiences."

Highlights of the festival are the much-anticipated Surf Nite, as well as the Music Video Showcase. Central Coast Filmmaker Showcase, Cal Poly Short Cuts, and Filmmakers of Tomorrow put a spotlight on local talent from California's Central Coast and emerging youth filmmakers from around the world.
