We developed the GovPilot Academy because we recognized a maturation in how local governments think about technology implementation. You need skilled users who can maximize these tools.”

The phenomenon mirrors similar shifts in private sector enterprise software, where companies report that inadequate training is the primary barrier to realizing ROI on technology investments. GovPilot Academy addresses this challenge with on-demand video courses, FAQ's, certification tracks, and role-specific learning paths designed for local government workflows.

Early results suggest the focused training approach is working. Municipal users report measurable efficiency gains, with one administrator noting: “I thought I was an expert in GovPilot and I've already learned techniques that make me significantly more efficient."
