It's a high-impact opportunity that opens doors to new career pathways with minimal barriers," said Amy Rossi, Director of Training and Co-Founder of Military Spouse Jobs.

Why Military Spouses Are a Natural Fit for Program Management?

Military spouses bring a wealth of lived experience and transferable skills that align seamlessly with program management roles. This camp helps formalize and build upon those strengths:

- Organization & Planning: Coordinating family schedules, managing household logistics, and navigating deployments mirror professional planning and coordination.

- Communication: Acting as the central communicator between schools, healthcare providers, and military support services reflects stakeholder engagement.
- Adaptability & Problem-Solving: Frequent relocations demand flexibility and quick thinking—critical traits for managing complex programs.
- Budgeting & Resource Management: Managing household finances translates directly to overseeing program budgets and timelines.

A Scalable, High-Impact Initiative.

Hosted internally by Military Spouse Jobs, the certification camp is designed to spotlight career advancement resources that may be underutilized or unknown to military spouses. With its streamlined format, the camp is both scalable and sustainable—making it an ideal model for future workforce development efforts.

“Military spouses already possess many of the core skills needed to succeed in program management,” said Deb Kloeppel, Founder of Military Spouse Jobs. “This camp is about recognizing those strengths and giving spouses the tools to translate them into meaningful, portable careers.”

“
