

Blacksmith Agency Explains Why Having a Stunning Website Design Matters in Chicago

CHICAGO, IL, UNITED STATES, September 29, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Blacksmith, a digital marketing agency in Chicago, explains why having an exceptional website design can be the difference between a brand standing out from the competition and being just another boring copy.

“

Having a simple website isn't enough anymore. Brands need a website with an exceptional web design if they want to compete and stand out from the competition.”

Joel Gobin, the Lead Designer at Blacksmith.

A brand's website design is the first thing any visitor sees whenever they click on its link. If a website looks mediocre or lackluster, chances are that they will leave and look for an alternative.

For brands in Chicago seeking to attract more customers, understanding the importance of exceptional website design is essential. Below are five reasons why having an amazing website design truly matters and what it can do for your business.

1. Excellent User Experience: Nothing deters users from exploring a website more than bad menus and a complicated navigation system. Chicago brands that invest in good website design will see an instant improvement in bounce rates and visitor retention over their outdated website.
2. Credibility: A good website design shows potential customers that the brand cares about everything, including how their website looks. This starts their first interaction on the right foot and sets the tone for any future interactions while the visitor explores the website.
3. Improved SEO: A website design that looks amazing and is focused on the brand's best SEO strategies will always outperform any competitor that is not following suit. Not only does a good website design retain visitors, but it also increases the odds of potential customers finding the brand's website through higher search engine rankings.
4. Better User Retention: Users expect Chicago brands to have a great-looking website with little to no issues. Users understand that if a website doesn't meet the baseline expectations they see on other websites, then they have no reason to stick around. An exceptional website design makes it so visitors want to stay and spend time exploring the brand's website.

5. Increased Accessibility: The core of a good website design revolves around accessibility. Chicago brands that are serious about their website understand how important having a fully accessible website is. Not only does it decrease legal risks based on accessibility to almost zero, but it also lets anyone access their website, no matter their disabilities.
