EINPresswire.com/ -- British blues-rock star Joanne Shaw Taylor has announced a new run of U.S. headline dates for Spring 2026. The tour announcement comes on the heels of Joanne's Black & Gold (Deluxe Edition), which added three new acoustic recordings to her most critically acclaimed album to date. STREAM Black & Gold (Deluxe Edition) now. ORDER the new studio album now.

Originally released in June, Black & Gold blends originals and covers, including a shimmering reinterpretation of Sam Sparro's hit "Black & Gold," and highlights Joanne's growth as a songwriter, guitarist, and vocalist. The title track, with Joanne's expressive voice and fiery guitar work, turns lines like "If you're not really here, then I don't wanna be either" into a raw meditation on presence, purpose, and cosmic longing

Classic Rock hailed Black & Gold as "a 9/10," while Powerplay Magazine praised its "pop appeal and smoothness." Guitarist magazine noted it "reinforces Joanne's place in the firmament of today's brightest stars," and American Blues Scene called it "a deeply personal experience, showcasing the depth of Joanne's artistry."

The 2026 Spring U.S. Tour adds to Joanne's busiest touring year yet, following a U.S. Spring 2025 run, summer festival appearances, and her ongoing Fall 2025 tours across the U.S. and Europe. Known for her fierce guitar work, smoky vocals, and emotionally charged performances, Joanne continues to captivate audiences worldwide with a live show that blends new material, fan favorites, and timeless blues.
