

AED SERVICE AMERICA Highlights the Critical Importance of AED Service Plans for Life-Saving Readiness

Mitigate Risk and Reduce Liability Ensuring AED Readiness.*

WINDSOR LOCKS, CT, UNITED STATES,
September 30, 2025 /
EINPresswire.com/ -- Automated
External Defibrillators (AEDs) save lives
every day, but owning one is not enough. AED SERVICE AMERICA is sounding the alarm on a widespread misconception: AEDs are not “set it and forget it” devices. Whether an organization owns a single AED in a church or manages 1,000 units
deployed across all 50 states,
maintaining a compliant, onsite AED service plan is every bit as important as owning the device itself.

Unfortunately, many AED owners purchase their units from large online retailers without receiving the proper education and guidance on AED upkeep. This leaves organizations vulnerable to the very risk they intended to prevent.

“We regard AEDs almost as if they are living, breathing organisms that need to be taken care of properly to work when needed,” says Nathan Marin, Vice President of Operations at AED SERVICE AMERICA. “When someone’s life is on the line, the worst-case scenario is retrieving an AED only to find it inoperable due to missed maintenance.”

Marin draws a parallel that most Americans can relate to. During a power outage, many people reach for a flashlight, only to discover the batteries are dead. The same issue occurs daily with AEDs across the country. “The vast majority of AED failures are caused by improper maintenance, not manufacturing defects,” Marin adds. “Device defects do happen, but they represent only a small fraction of failures. Maintenance—or the lack of it—is the real issue.”

While many companies offer software tools and remote dashboards, AED SERVICE AMERICA emphasizes that nothing replaces a trained professional physically inspecting the device, checking the pads and batteries, running diagnostics, and logging the work at regular intervals. “Clients need more than data—they need confidence,” Marin explains. “That confidence only comes when a real person shows up to ensure compliance and readiness.”

AED SERVICE AMERICA has earned national recognition for its consistent focus on three key areas:

Compliant AED Service Plans: Designed to meet state and federal requirements, these plans remove the guesswork from AED ownership and ensure organizations remain liability-free.

Onsite Inspections and Documentation: Service professionals provide hands-on maintenance, recordkeeping, and compliance reporting.

Nationwide Reach and Flexibility: Whether managing a single AED or thousands spread across the country, AED SERVICE AMERICA provides uniform, reliable service tailored to each client’s scale.

This comprehensive approach has made AED SERVICE AMERICA the trusted partner for organizations ranging from churches and schools to Fortune 500 corporations. The company emphasizes that AED service plans are not optional add-ons—they are critical safety nets. Without them, AEDs may fail when they are needed most.

“AEDs are life-saving devices, but only if they work,” Marin concludes. “By investing in a proper AED service plan, organizations are not just checking a compliance box—they are ensuring their AEDs can deliver when lives are on the line.”
