“Michael's depth of experience in affordable housing litigation is unmatched,” said Brian M. Nelson of Spiro Harrison & Nelson. “He's helped dozens of municipalities across New Jersey protect their interests while addressing an ever changing regulatory landscape.”

Jedziniak built his career as one of the state's leading attorneys in Mount Laurel litigation, having served as Special Counsel to more than 60 municipalities in proceedings before the former New Jersey Council on Affordable Housing (COAH) and before the State's Trial, Appellate and Supreme Court. Much of Jedziniak's experience was gained in the decades during which COAH's regulations were repeatedly judicially invalidated through the Legislature's recent substantial amendments to the Fair Housing Act. His practice focuses on helping clients navigate the legal, regulatory, and planning challenges of affordable housing obligations, redevelopment, and land use disputes.

“I'm thrilled to join Spiro Harrison & Nelson, a firm known for its innovative approach to complex litigation,” said Jedziniak. “I look forward to leveraging my experience to continue serving New Jersey municipalities and other clients facing challenging affordable housing and land use issues.”

Prior to joining Spiro Harrison & Nelson, Jedziniak held senior roles at several prominent New Jersey law firms, where he successfully represented towns in high-stakes negotiations and courtroom proceedings related to affordable housing, redevelopment and environmental permitting.

Jedziniak began his legal career as a judicial clerk for the Honorable James M. Havey, P.J.A.D. (ret.), in the New Jersey Appellate Division. He earned his J.D. from Seton Hall University School of Law and his B.A. in Industrial Relations from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where he was also a standout varsity baseball player.
