HomeWAV Wins 2025 Stratus Award for Cloud Innovation

“

This award validates our team's commitment to delivering meaningful, cloud-first solutions that drive results for our facility partners and communities.”

HomeWAV Director of Product Management Andrew Lewis

The Stratus Awards were judged by more than 500 technology leaders who provided over 60,000 words of thoughtful, private feedback to nominees. HomeWAV was honored as a top Product of the Year for Software as a Service (SaaS), recognizing the company's leadership in applying cloud technologies to deliver scalable, secure, and transformative communication solutions for correctional facilities and the communities they serve.

Celebrating Cloud Innovation

“We are honored to receive this recognition from the Business Intelligence Group,” said Andrew Lewis, director of product management at HomeWAV. “This award validates our team's commitment to delivering meaningful, cloud-first solutions that drive results for our facility partners and communities.”

As a pioneer in correctional technology, HomeWAV continues to advance its product and service offerings by leveraging the scalability and reliability of the cloud. Through its Software as a Service (SaaS) model, HomeWAV delivers secure, seamless solutions that enhance operational efficiency for facilities while improving accessibility for visitors. From real-time communication tools to administrative management features, the company's cloud-first approach ensures continuous innovation and adaptability in a rapidly evolving industry. This recognition affirms HomeWAV's role as a trusted technology partner committed to driving progress in the correctional industry.

"Cloud computing is reshaping every corner of the business landscape, and this year's winners represent the best of what's possible," said Russ Fordyce, chief recognition officer of the Business Intelligence Group. "From enabling smarter infrastructure to unlocking the power of AI, the organizations we're celebrating today are defining the future of the cloud. Congratulations to HomeWAV and all of our 2025 winners."
