New York City Property Management

Summer Law, recently recognized as a 2025 Featured Leader by Influential Women, is a strategic operations executive renowned for driving organizational transformation through innovation, structure, and long-term vision. With over a decade of experience spanning real estate, business management, and digital transformation, she currently serves as Vice President at SIBA Residences—a multi-generational family office managing a diverse portfolio of real estate assets, operating businesses, and strategic investments.

A Career Built on Innovation and Operational Excellence

Armed with a BS from Penn State University and advanced business training through Augment.org, Summer began her professional journey with entrepreneurial ventures in retail and e-commerce, gaining expertise in sales, operations, and customer experience. Transitioning into real estate, she quickly earned a reputation for revitalizing underperforming operations.

At SIBA Residences, Summer led a post-COVID restructuring, transitioning the company to a fully cloud-based tech stack and integrating AI across leasing, finance, compliance, and maintenance. Her accomplishments include leading the refinancing of $70 million in commercial loans, securing favorable terms in a challenging post-COVID environment, standardizing company-wide SOPs, and establishing a compliance framework aligned with Federal, New York State, and NYC housing laws.

She emphasizes that these transformations were achieved through a strong, collaborative team — aligning financial managers, compliance coordinators, and property staff under a shared vision of accountability and excellence.

Expertise in Technology, Compliance, and Team Leadership

Summer's core strengths span AI and technology integration in operations, real estate portfolio management, compliance with complex housing and labor regulations, leadership development, strategic finance, and family office governance. She has successfully built high-performing, globally distributed teams with clearly defined roles and succession plans, emphasizing accountability, clarity, and sustainable growth. Additionally, she is laying the foundation for Succession Partners, an emerging real estate-anchored GP platform and family office consultancy blending capital strategy, AI-enhanced governance, and succession planning to preserve and grow multi-generational wealth.

Navigating Challenges and Embracing Opportunities

Summer acknowledges that New York City property management faces pressing challenges, including chronic housing shortages, rising maintenance and labor costs, strict rent regulations, and political uncertainty. Deferred maintenance and slow housing court processes further complicate operations, especially for rent-stabilized properties. Yet, she sees vast opportunities in technology adoption—such as AI, PropTech, and smart building systems—as well as luxury developments, ESG-focused retrofits, and innovative financing models like asset tokenization. Summer emphasizes that operators who balance compliance, operational efficiency, and tenant experience while leveraging new technologies are best positioned for long-term success.

Guiding Principles and Professional Philosophy

At the heart of Summer's work is perseverance, the value she credits with sustaining her drive and determination. She attributes her success to a combination of strategic vision, operational discipline, early adoption of transformative technology, and a steadfast belief that building strong teams is the most sustainable path to growth. The best career advice she has received is to “go deep”—focus on mastering one's true strengths. For young women entering the field, she encourages persistence, confidence, and unwavering commitment to pushing forward regardless of obstacles.

Summer Law continues to set a benchmark for leadership in real estate operations, blending technology, strategic insight, and team empowerment to deliver transformative results across New York City's complex property landscape — and laying the groundwork for the next generation of family office stewardship.
