The Risks of Neglecting Security Operations

If SIEM and SOC are not integrated, companies have several high-stakes risks such as delayed threat detection, missed compliance, overworked IT staff, and expensive breaches. With a lack of qualified security professionals, increasing regulatory demands, and the cost of internal SOC environments built in-house, which can run into millions, enterprises find it hard to maintain good security practices.

Consequences of Ignoring SIEM and SOC:

1. Critical delays in identifying and responding to cyber threats
2. Audit failures and heightened exposure to regulatory penalties
