Celebrated by Influential Women and featured in its 2025 edition, Cindy Janicki is a dedicated executive search professional whose work empowers nonprofit organizations across the United States. As a Senior Executive Recruiter at Career Blazers Nonprofit Search, a woman-owned firm specializing exclusively in the nonprofit sector, Cindy excels at matching mission-aligned, high-performing talent with organizations in need of visionary leadership. Her approach emphasizes purposeful communication, strategic relationship-building, and a deep understanding of both client and candidate needs, ensuring impactful hiring decisions that support organizational growth and sustainability.

With over two decades of experience in business development, client relations, and talent strategy, Cindy brings a wealth of expertise to the nonprofit space. She spent nearly 20 years at WW (formerly Weight Watchers), holding multiple sales and account leadership roles, where she honed her skills in building long-term partnerships and navigating complex organizational needs. A Marketing graduate from Frostburg State University, Cindy leverages her education and professional experience to provide clients with tailored solutions and exceptional guidance throughout the recruitment process.

Cindy's ability to evaluate employment candidates for the best possible placement sets her apart. She works closely with clients to understand their unique requirements and champions their needs at every step. Through ongoing communication, relationship management, and a commitment to excellence, she ensures that each client is supported with solutions that meet both current and future organizational goals. Her client-centered approach positions her as a trusted partner, combining strategic insight with a personal touch to deliver results that matter.

Passion and dedication form the cornerstone of Cindy's professional philosophy. She attributes her success to the work ethic instilled by her parents and finds purpose in leaving each day knowing she has contributed meaningfully to advancing organizational missions. "Find what truly excites you," she advises young women entering the field. "When you're passionate about your work, showing up every day becomes something you look forward to—and that joy will carry you through every challenge."

Cindy is driven by a profound commitment to people, purpose, and progress. Her work helps nonprofit organizations recruit exceptional talent, directly contributing to measurable impact and the advancement of critical community missions. Through her leadership, insight, and dedication, Cindy Janicki continues to shape the nonprofit sector by connecting the right leaders with the right organizations, fostering positive change across the nation.
