

Integrity Launches Commercial Product Line for Janitorial and Food Service Products

Integrity Rotational announces the launch of Integrity Commercial Products, a comprehensive line of rotationally molded janitorial and foodservice products.

PLAINFIELD, IL, UNITED STATES, October 3, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Integrity Rotational Molding, LLC is proud to announce the official launch of Integrity Commercial Products, a new in-house brand featuring a comprehensive line of rotationally molded janitorial and foodservice products.

Rotationally molded products : trash cans, dunnage racks

This new brand follows Integrity's acquisition of a legacy product line in late 2023. In accordance with the acquisition agreement, the previous brand name will not be disclosed. Terry Stemple, Owner of Integrity Rotational Molding, played a key role in the original design, production, and market introduction of these products while employed by the previous owner. Bob Houry of Houry Design was also employed by the previous owner responsible for the original product design and engineering.

We saw an opportunity not just to revive these products, but to make them better. Designs now include updated aesthetics, improved ergonomics, and more efficient production methods.”

Integrity plans to expand into the hospitality market in 2026 with an improved maid cart and linen support equipment. All tooling has been completely refurbished in-house to enable high-speed production on Integrity's RS-330 machine.

"We saw an opportunity not just to revive these products, but to make them better," said Terry Stemple. "Our designs now include updated aesthetics, improved ergonomics, and production methods that offer higher output and lower cost per unit."

Integrity has made significant investments in product reengineering to provide a competitive edge. New features include molded-in axles, secure flapper doors, and heavy-duty bases.

Integrity Commercial Products will make its official industry debut at the 2025 ISSA Show. New Exhibitors Pavilion booth #2305 The company anticipates strong interest from janitorial supply distributors, hospitality chains, building services, facility maintenance, public parks and institutional buyers.

"This is the culmination of decades of experience in custom molding and product development," added Stemple. "With Integrity Commercial Products, we are building a long-term brand that delivers better design, U.S. manufacturing, and dependable supply."

Recent investments in equipment and facilities are part of Integrity's long-range vision to become a leader in both the rotational molding and commercial products markets.
