This project is about choosing to embrace the journey, the joy, the loss, the healing and recognizing that in the end, it was all worth it”

Following her self-titled debut EP in 2022, "It Was Worth It" captures a new chapter for Grace – one marked by resilience, heartbreak, and ultimately gratitude. The release will be accompanied by two music videos; one for her current single "Guys That Leave" and another for the EP's powerful focus track "Didn't Cry Today." These videos are executive produced by Grace herself, filmed and directed by Sean O'Halloran and director of photography by Sam Aldrich. Alongside the music, Grace will also drop Taste with Grace: Volume 2 – A Fall Kitchen Playlist, a curated collection of seasonal recipes inspired by the EP's
