SINGAPORE, SINGAPORE, October 6, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- In an open letter published on its website, ELFIGO Mobility calls on the Singapore Government to regulate mobility scooters as medical devices. Key points:

Box containing a mobility scooter labelled as medical device and controlled goods

- Mobility scooters are already regulated as medical devices in many developed countries, including the US and Europe.
  - Under Health Sciences Authority (HSA) guidance, any product intended to alleviate or compensate for an injury is a medical device.
  - The Government has stated that PMAs should be used only by people with certified medical needs or walking disabilities; by that definition, mobility scooters qualify as medical devices.
- “As this involves multiple agencies, namely LTA, HSA and Singapore Customs, I hope a multi-agency task force will be formed to study this proposal”
- If gazetted as Class A medical devices, local sellers would require an Importer's Licence from HSA, easing enforcement of local suppliers.
  - Singapore Customs would have clearer authority to refuse clearance and detain unlicensed shipments from overseas sellers, supporting Land Transport Authority (LTA) rules coming into effect in 2026.
