Brokers need speed, simplicity, and confidence in their operations. Our integration with HaulPay eliminates the inefficiencies of juggling multiple systems and protecting brokers from costly mistakes.”

Adam Lang, Co-Founder

leading transportation management system built to empower freight brokers, today announced a strategic integration with HaulPay, the industry’s trusted payment and carrier vetting platform. This integration gives brokers the ability to manage payments, access factoring, and ensure carrier compliance without ever leaving the Sunnybrook platform.

“Brokers need speed, simplicity, and confidence in their operations,” said Adam Lang, co-founder at Sunnybrook. “Our integration with HaulPay allows users to execute critical payment and vetting tasks directly from the TMS, eliminating the inefficiencies of juggling multiple systems and protecting brokers from costly mistakes.”

With the new integration, brokers using Sunnybrook TMS can:

- Factor with Confidence: Access HaulPay’s non-recourse factoring program to ensure carriers are paid quickly while mitigating financial risk.
- Stay Flexible with Self-Funded Options: For brokers who fund payments on their own, HaulPay manages payouts to carriers, simplifying the process.
- Protect Against Fraud: Leverage HaulPay’s exclusive carrier vetting that cross-checks FMCSA data and bank account information, ensuring brokers pay the right carrier every time.

The Sunnybrook + HaulPay integration empowers brokers to focus on growing their businesses rather than losing time and visibility by moving across multiple platforms. By keeping these essential functions inside Sunnybrook, brokers gain efficiency, strengthen carrier relationships, and safeguard their operations.

“This partnership reflects our shared commitment to putting brokers first,” said Olivia Irvin-Martinez, Product Development Manager of HaulPay. “Together, we’re giving them tools that combine convenience with peace of mind.”
