Art Pharmacy CEO and Founder Chris Appleton

"We are incredibly grateful to Startup Atlanta for this recognition," Art Pharmacy CEO and Founder Chris Appleton said. "This past year Art Pharmacy's social prescribing solution has made significant progress with partnerships in higher education such as the University of Arizona and the University of North Carolina School of the Arts, and in the healthcare space with Wellstar Health System and San Ysidro Health. We aim to continue providing a whole person solution for U.S. healthcare."

Art Pharmacy's solution uniquely combines decades of research in the field of arts and health with the care model of social prescribing, a model of care delivery that enables health professionals to formally prescribe non-clinical community activities — including the arts, movement, nature, and service — to improve physical and mental health outcomes.
