As personal safety and home security concerns reach new heights across the U.S., a growing number of families, public figures, and high-net-worth individuals are turning to a proven and powerful solution: professionally trained protection dogs. Rising crime—including a wave of sophisticated home burglaries & home invasions—are fueling unprecedented demand for expertly trained canine protectors.

Safety shouldn't sacrifice companionship — that's why every dog we train becomes part of the family they protect.”

Graham Bloem, Specialty Dog Training

Specialty Dog Training™ (SDT), a nationally recognized leader based in Southern California, is at the forefront of this movement. Led by Graham Bloem, Owner and CEO, SDT has built a reputation for training some of the most stable, loyal, and highly-skilled protection dogs available today. SDT hand delivers and transfers their trained protectors all over the country.

“Clients are looking for more than just cameras and alarms,” said Bloem. “They want a trusted companion who can provide real-time security, act on command, and integrate into the family dynamic.”

Recent reports have spotlighted a troubling influx of organized burglaries and home invasions in affluent, guard-gated communities across the country. These high-end crimes, often carried out by sophisticated criminal groups, are targeting athletes, celebrities, entertainers and other high net worth individuals —especially while they're traveling. By tracking social media activity, travel schedules, and routines, criminals are exploiting vulnerable windows of opportunity.

"Many of these individuals are turning to protection dogs to further secure their homes and protect their loved ones," Bloem said. "These dogs are not only highly trained defenders—they're loyal family members who are always present, alert, and prepared." At SDT, dogs are hand-selected from world-class bloodlines and undergo comprehensive health, temperament, and suitability screenings. Raised in real-life environments with exposure to children, other dogs, and diverse settings, these dogs are prepared for the everyday life of the clients they will ultimately protect.

Each SDT dog is trained to:

- Respond to all obedience commands on- and off-leash
- Alert bark on command and demonstrate a threat response as a deterrent
- Position themselves between their handler and a threat
- Fully engage to stop a threat when necessary

"We customize each training program based on the individual dog and the specific lifestyle of the client," added Bloem. "We don't believe in a one-size-fits-all approach. Our job is to align the right dog with the right home, ensuring both safety and compatibility."

Crime trends reinforce the growing concern. The Public Policy Institute of California noted a 5.7% increase in violent crime and a 5.9% rise in property crimes. Meanwhile, SafeWise's 2023 State of Safety in America report found that burglaries occur every 30 seconds in the U.S.—many in homes considered secure by traditional means.

"Protection dogs have become an essential layer of defense," said Bloem. "With the right training, your dog can be both your most loyal companion and your most reliable security system."
