The right prescription for cannabis can be life-changing for many people who have found little to no relief from traditional pharmaceuticals or don't do well with them.”

Dr Matthew Brimberry

Texas, is now able to prescribe medical cannabis for chronic pain, traumatic brain injury, Crohn's/IBD, many terminal conditions, and those receiving palliative and hospice care thanks to Governor Abbott signing HB 46 – Medical Cannabis Expansion Bill – June 21, 2025. This expansion includes removing the 1% THC cap on Texas's Medical Marijuana products, making Texas the 40th state to legalize cannabis use, effective September 1, 2025.

In addition, the newly enacted law does the following:

- Switched THC limits to an mg-based dosing model - 10 mg THC per dose cap — changing how products are formulated and labeled for patients.

- Allows more product types and inhalation routes, including vaporization/aerosolized devices, patches, suppositories, syringes, topicals, etc.
- Improves access and distribution. The law creates authority for additional dispensing licenses and satellite dispensing locations, plus registration/administration changes intended to make access more practical statewide. Specifically, 12 new licenses will be added to reach the total of 15 (3 already are in place).

“This is a huge win for Texans, who can now legally utilize cannabis to get relief from a myriad of previously uncovered conditions,” said Matthew Brimberry, MD, founder and medical director of Texas Cannabis Clinic. “The right prescription for cannabis can be life-changing for many people who have found little to no relief from traditional pharmaceuticals or don't do well with them. Cannabis can also work in tandem with many prescription drugs to provide a synergistic effect.”

One of Dr Brimberry's patients who has seen a remarkable reduction in pain and burning from neuropathy is 51-year-old Cynthia Frazier from Houston, TX. Cynthia had back surgery in 2017 and was told she needed another surgery a few years later but decided she didn't want to go through that again. After seeing her suffer in agony, a friend of Cynthia's gave her a brochure for Texas Cannabis Clinic.

"My experience with Texas Cannabis Clinic has been simply amazing, and I can't thank them enough for giving me my life back," said Cynthia. "People should know this is not at all about 'getting high,' it's about getting real relief from real pain, anxiety, and other issues, so if you're looking for a buzz, you are in the wrong place. This is a serious medical facility committed to helping improve people's quality of life."

Texas Cannabis Clinic physicians and "marijuana doctors" regularly design treatments to relieve symptoms associated with autism, multiple sclerosis, muscle spasms, PTSD, and seizures.

Same-day appointments are available, and there is no charge if you don't qualify for medical cannabis treatment. To learn more about medical marijuana, book a telehealth appointment today.
