Our history of happy customers, five-star reviews, and truly one-of-a-kind jewelry-making experiences gave us the confidence to open a second location,”

Founder CEO Amy Fitzgerald

Nestled in the heart of Berkeley’s vibrant Fourth Street shopping district, the new Silverwork Studios joins a lively mix of national favorites and local gems. The area is home to well-known destinations such as Anthropologie and Apple, alongside creative, hands-on spaces like Stained Glass Garden, making it the perfect setting for a studio devoted to artistry, craftsmanship, and community connection.

“Our history of happy customers, five-star reviews, and truly one-of-a-kind jewelry-making experiences gave us the confidence to open a second location,” said Founder CEO

Amy Fitzgerald. “We’re already established in Sausalito with a successful studio there, and we love working closely with beginners to create a custom piece of jewelry. It’s so fulfilling when someone makes their own beautifully unique piece. Our studio has become a favorite spot for date nights, groups, and girls' night out, and being close to great dining and shopping options on Fourth Street in Berkeley is a natural fit."

At Silverwork Studios, guests can dive into 1-2 hour guided sessions to learn foundational techniques such as soldering and metalworking, or book extended appointments for more advanced projects like bezel making. Workshops are geared for beginners, with clients learning basic soldering skills; an exciting, hands-on experience of melting metal. Each experience is designed to empower creativity and provide hands-on, personal engagement, resulting in a piece that is as unique as its maker. The studio also offers permanent jewelry, an increasingly popular trend, where clients can create custom-fitted, clasp-free bracelets or anklets that are welded on for a lasting, elegant look, as well as an extensive charm bar to make custom charm bracelets.

The Berkeley studio is open by appointment Wednesday through Sunday and welcomes individuals, groups, and private events. With its creative spirit and welcoming atmosphere, Silverwork Studios is poised to become a natural fit among the beloved makers and merchants of Fourth Street.
