This collaboration unites two innovative proposals that are transforming the music scene in Puerto Rico and Latin America. The track "Pa' Los Dolores" - which in Spanish means 'for the pains' or a cure for what hurts - celebrates Latin culture with regional, international rhythms and the contagious energy that characterizes both Algareplena and Los Chinchillos del Caribe.

"Composing this song and being able to collaborate with Algareplena, is undoubtedly an honor and a positive step to take our sound and our roots to new places and ears, putting our native music into an international scene, fused with our cumbioso seasoning with mischief and flavor," said King Chinchillo, vocalist and leader of Los Chinchillos del Caribe

The single is available on all digital platforms, including Spotify, Apple Music, YouTube and Amazon Music. The song will be accompanied by a music video that promises to show the audience why plena is the cure for pain while promoting the contagious joy of the Caribbean party.

With this release, Algareplena continues to consolidate its position as one of the most dynamic and representative groups of the new wave of tropical music fusion. The group will continue to take the Puerto Rican plena to global stages, transforming the perspective of the plena's role in the music scene and conquering new audiences.
