The opening coincides with the firm's 60th anniversary. The firm now operates in Lincoln, Council Bluffs, and three strategic Omaha locations, with 200+ employees in 11 states including Washington D.C. continuing its legacy of defending the rights of the seriously injured and standing beside America's Veterans.

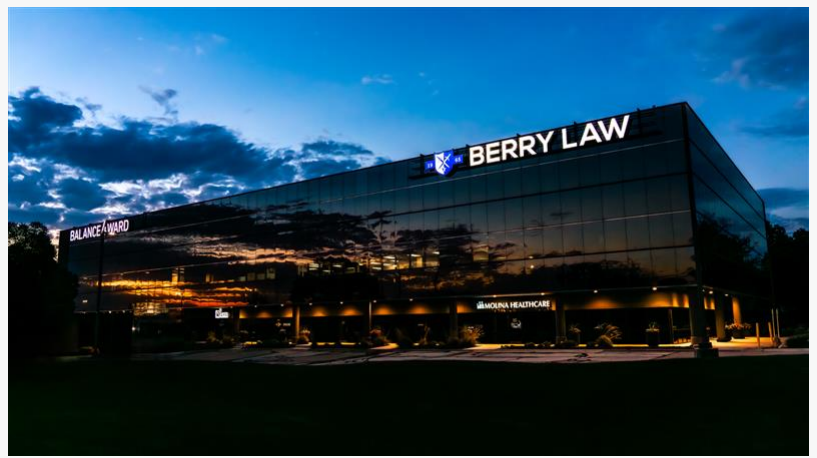

“This isn't just about growth—it's about meaningful expansion into communities that support our Veterans,” said Bob Musilek, Chief Marketing Officer of Berry Law. “Opening two new Omaha offices in one year is a statement of intent. It proves that our mission to serve the seriously injured resonates across Nebraska and beyond.”
