This isn't just a fundraiser, it's a statement. We're here to build systems that help creatives stay alive and keep creating.”

Judyya “Juice” Chisolm, Executive Director

Watch Light Pathways is the first nonprofit of its kind to integrate Medicaid-billable, state-certified peer support with non-clinical mental health and substance use recovery, combined with career training and workforce development, specifically designed for the creative industries. Co-founded by Judyya “Juice” Chisolm and Harold “Ceo Self” Chisolm, the organization is powered by lived experience and built on the belief that no artist should have to choose between healing and success.

The gala kicks off Phase One of the nonprofit's public programming rollout, raising awareness and funding for two signature initiatives:

- The Watchmen Program - peer-led recovery and workforce support for justice-involved and at-risk creatives seeking to restart or sustain careers in the creative industries.
- Lights On Youth Initiative - a career readiness and resilience program for teens aged 14 - 18, focused on wellness, creative training, and leadership development.

"We've seen too many talented artists crash because there was no safety net," added Harold "Ceo Self" Chisolm, Program Director. "This gala helps us build the support network they deserve."

The evening will include musical performances, personal stories of recovery, a Kicks-on-the-Carpet red carpet photo experience, heavy hors d'oeuvres, a signature mocktail bar, and live karaoke fundraising moments. Attendees will also witness the premiere of the organization's official impact video, offering a powerful look into the real-life challenges creatives face and the solutions Watch Light Pathways is building to support them.
