

Addressing Stigma: Mark Savaya Calls for Science-First Dialogue on Cannabis

TROY, MI, UNITED STATES, October 26, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Mark Savaya continues to encourage a fact-based public dialogue about cannabis, urging a shift away from outdated stigma and toward science-driven understanding. His advocacy aligns with a broader national trend emphasizing education and transparency in medical cannabis discussions.

Recent surveys show that a majority of oncologists now discuss cannabis use with their patients, and two-thirds believe it can be beneficial for managing pain and appetite during cancer care [\[18\]](#). Experts such as Dr. Peter Grinspoon of Harvard Medical School have also highlighted that the therapeutic benefits of cannabis for chronic pain and other conditions often outweigh potential risks [\[19\]](#).

During the COVID-19 pandemic, many states classified medical cannabis dispensaries as essential businesses — a reflection of the growing acknowledgment of their importance to patient well-being [\[17\]](#). Savaya's community work and outreach efforts continue to focus on evidence-based communication, supporting a more informed and compassionate public perspective on cannabis.

Nicole Adams
Gold Dot Media
email us here

New trust in plant-based therapies and a shift toward evidence-backed patient care.

This press release can be viewed online at: <https://www.einpresswire.com/article/861678595>

EIN Presswire's priority is source transparency. We do not allow opaque clients, and our editors try to be careful about weeding out false and misleading content. As a user, if you see something we have missed, please do bring it to our attention. Your help is welcome. EIN Presswire, Everyone's Internet News Presswire™, tries to define some of the boundaries that are reasonable in today's world. Please see our Editorial Guidelines for more information.

