With over a decade of experience, Dr. Roncin has established herself as a leading expert in pathology. A dual board-certified Anatomic and Clinical Pathologist, she is a vital member of the medical team at CHI Health, part of CommonSpirit Health in Nebraska. In addition to her clinical role, she serves as an Assistant Professor in the Department of Pathology at Creighton University School of Medicine, where she is deeply committed to educating and mentoring the next generation of physicians.

Dr. Roncin specializes in surgical pathology, with a particular focus on breast pathology, while maintaining broad expertise across the full spectrum of clinical pathology. Highly regarded within the medical community, she collaborates closely with clinicians to provide comprehensive, patient-centered diagnostic insights. As a key faculty member in Creighton University's combined Anatomic and Clinical Pathology Residency Program, she contributes to curriculum development, resident training, and professional mentorship, ensuring the continued advancement of excellence in pathology education and practice.

Her professional affiliations reflect her commitment to advancing the field of pathology, with active memberships in organizations such as the United States and Canadian Academy of Pathology (USCAP), the College of American Pathologists (CAP), the International Society of Breast Pathology (ISBP), the International Society of Urological Pathology (ISUP), the Digital Pathology Association (DPA), and the American Society for Clinical Pathology (ASCP), among others.

Dr. Roncin's areas of expertise include pathology, surgical pathology, breast pathology, quality assurance and improvement, medical education, clinician wellness, and leadership development.

Before embarking on her career as a first-generation medical graduate, Dr. Roncin earned her Bachelor of Science with Honors in Anatomy and Cell Biology from the University of Saskatchewan, followed by a Bachelor of Science in Health Science and a Doctor of Medicine from the Medical University of the Americas. She completed her postgraduate training with a residency in combined Anatomic and Clinical Pathology at Case Western Reserve University, University Hospitals Cleveland Medical Center, where she refined her diagnostic skills and developed a strong foundation in both surgical and clinical pathology.

During her residency, she pursued a selective fellowship in pathology with a concentration in breast pathology at the same institution, further shaping her subspecialty focus. To deepen her expertise, she completed a second clinical fellowship in surgical pathology at the University of Saskatchewan under the Saskatchewan Health Authority in Saskatoon, Canada, in 2023. That same year, she joined the organization as a practicing pathologist.

Throughout her illustrious career, Dr. Roncin has received many awards and accolades and has been recognized worldwide for her accomplishments. During her residency, Dr. Roncin was recognized for her outstanding academic and clinical performance, receiving the Harry L. Taylor IV, MD Trainee Award in Pathology in 2018 and the Association of Residents and Fellows Travel Award in 2021. That same year, she earned the Jerome A. Smith Infectious Disease Poster Award from the Binford-Dammin Society of Infectious Disease Pathologists.

Her excellence and leadership have been celebrated throughout her career. In 2024, Dr. Roncin was recognized as a Listed Honoree by Marquis Who's Who in America and Marquis Who's Who of Professional Women, and was also named a Top Pathologist by Best in Nebraska Magazine. In 2025, she was honored as Top Surgical and Clinical Pathologist of the Year, Empowered Woman of the Year, and selected for inclusion in IAOTP's publication Top 50 Fearless Leaders. That same year, she received Marquis Who's Who recognition as a Top Doctor, with features in several prominent publications, including Fortune National Magazine, and upcoming appearances in Forbes, TIME, and Marquis Who's Who Millennium Magazine. Dr. Roncin graced the front cover of TIP Magazine.

In addition to her distinguished medical career, Dr. Roncin is actively involved in civic and professional organizations. Since 2023, she has served as the lead pathology representative on a local network cancer committee and was appointed Commission on Cancer Chair for the committee's 2025–2026 term. She is also an active member of the local breast care team and serves as the lead pathology representative on the Breast Health Professional Advisory Board for CHI Health.

Dr. Roncin has spearheaded several impactful initiatives throughout her career. She developed reflex testing algorithms for patients with gastrointestinal and non-small cell lung adenocarcinoma. These projects received full endorsement from both the cancer committee and senior leadership across all hospitals she serves. Her ongoing work includes quality assurance and improvement initiatives within the anatomic pathology laboratory at CHI Health, ranging from optimizing specimen handling protocols to conducting cost analyses of large-scale patient cases. Looking ahead, her projects will explore biomarker analysis in underrepresented patient populations, focusing on both established and emerging markers. She is also committed to bridging pathology and patient care by collaborating with clinical colleagues on patient-centered initiatives. Since 2024, she has chaired the Department of Pathology's Grand Rounds Committee at CHI Health, advancing continuous education and excellence in her field.

Beyond her clinical and academic responsibilities, Dr. Roncin remains actively engaged in her community. She has participated in the Medical University of the Americas chapter of the American Medical Student Association and volunteered with the Greystone Scholar Society in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

Looking back, Dr. Roncin attributes much of her success to perseverance and determination, often crediting her parents as being her most significant influence owing to the values they instilled in her as a child, along with their continued unwavering support and encouragement.

When not working she enjoys spending time with her family and traveling, with board games being a favorite pastime. In the future, she hopes to further expand her presence on YouTube, where she has an educational channel that allows her to connect with and share her knowledge and experiences with a broader audience. In addition, she hopes to inspire others to enter the field of pathology and laboratory medicine at all levels, from laboratory assistants and medical technologists to pathology assistants and pathologists.
