As the world's fintech leaders gather at Money20/20 USA in Las Vegas, NOORAI announces the official launch of the NOORAI Platform, a next-generation decision intelligence system designed to help organizations simulate, predict, and optimize complex economic and financial outcomes.

Built to bridge human judgment and artificial foresight, the NOORAI Platform empowers leaders across finance, enterprise, and government to make faster, smarter, and more transparent decisions in an increasingly complex world.

"Financial and enterprise leaders are navigating unprecedented complexity," said Yacoub Nuseibeh, CFA, CQF, CEO of NOORAI. "Our goal is to empower decision-makers with clarity and foresight, not to replace them with algorithms, but to amplify their capabilities responsibly."

The launch during Money20/20 underscores NOORAI's commitment to responsible, transparent and practical AGI adoption especially in industries that move capital, trust, and global growth.

The NOORAI Platform integrates advanced simulation, scenario modeling, and real-time data interpretation, allowing organizations to explore 'what-if' economic scenarios, forecast key indicators, and evaluate the potential outcomes of policy, market, or investment decisions before they happen.

“Launching the NOORAI Platform during Money20/20 is symbolic of our vision,” Nuseibeh added. “It represents a step toward an AI ecosystem that is practical, governed, and human-centric.”

In the months ahead, NOORAI will expand partnerships with enterprise and government organizations to demonstrate how decision intelligence can transform strategic and economic planning at scale.
