Dubbed the "LinkedIn for service providers," and "the Angi killer" JobSnap gives service providers, from handymen and landscapers to cleaners, tutors, plumbers and pet sitters, a professional digital identity that helps them attract repeat business and increase earnings. Through mobile-first profiles that showcase skills, reviews, and work history, JobSnap helps local workers get discovered and rehired directly by customers, eliminating costly middlemen and onerous commission fees.

"Ridgefield's Tiger Shark Tank is about empowering entrepreneurs who are creating meaningful solutions for their communities," said James Albis, Founder and CEO of JobSnap. "We're honored to share how JobSnap is cutting out per-lead fees and commissions, and then giving local workers the same digital visibility and opportunity that office professionals have enjoyed for years."

The Tiger Shark Tank event begins tonight with networking at 5:30 p.m., followed by live presentations at 6:30 p.m. at the Ridgefield Playhouse. The public is invited to attend free of charge to support local innovation and entrepreneurship.
