Blind Judging Process & Judging Panel

The NYX Game Awards implements a blind judging process to ensure impartiality, and that winners are recognized for success and contribution to the global gaming landscape. Each entry was evaluated by expert game developers, critics, and industry professionals based solely on quality and relevance to the judging criteria.

The 2025 jury featured industry leaders and creative experts from around the world, including: Michael Spegar (United States), Ahmad Al-Natsheh (United Arab Emirates), Claire Ferrin (United States), Anton Söderhäll (Sweden), Xianzhe Li (China), Emily Black (United States), Valentin Briukhanov (Serbia), Ralph Miller (United States), and others.

"Games are more than pixels on a screen. They're worlds you can enter, experiences you can feel, and stories that linger long after the console shuts off. From epic AAA titles to outstanding Indie stories, the NYX Game Awards celebrates all creators transforming ambition into experience, and imagination into worlds we want to explore again and again!" Exclaimed Thomas Brandt, spokesperson of IAA.
