

Walking Photography Workshop Brings Creative Energy to Comfort, Texas

COMFORT, TX, UNITED STATES, November 1, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Texas Hill Country will soon play host to a unique creative retreat as award-winning photojournalist Michael Amici leads a five-day Walking Photography Workshop in Comfort, Texas, from December 7–12, 2025. The workshop invites photographers of all levels to explore the beauty, architecture, and atmosphere of Comfort and nearby San Antonio through the lens of a camera.

Combining classroom instruction with guided photo walks, the workshop offers participants an opportunity to develop both technical and artistic skills while immersing themselves in the region's rich visual landscape. Daily sessions will focus on cityscapes, architecture, portraiture, nature, and night photography, culminating in a final group exhibition and cocktail reception at The Meyer Hotel, one of Comfort's historic treasures.

"Comfort is the perfect setting for this workshop," says host Shari Reynolds, owner of Wanderers Retreat House, a boutique guest property in the heart of Comfort. "Its walkable downtown, charming architecture, and creative community create a space where inspiration comes easily."

Instructor Michael Amici, a longtime educator with the Santa Fe Photography Workshops, brings decades of experience as a photojournalist and fine art photographer. His teaching encourages participants to move beyond the technical aspects of photography and engage deeply with their surroundings.

Enrollment is limited to just 10 participants, ensuring an intimate and personalized experience.
