

Tech Raid Inc. Delaware to Take TimeKrishna Public in 2026; India's First AI Social Platform Built on its YayEye Engine

TechRaid Inc. (Delaware) to take India's first AI social platform, TimeKrishna, public in 2026 on Indian Stock Exchange, built on its proprietary YayEye engine.

LEWES, DE, UNITED STATES, November 1, 2025 /EINPresswire.com/ -- TechRaid Inc., the Delaware based AI Product holding company, today announced that its Indian subsidiary, TimeKrishna, is preparing to go public in 2026, making it the first AI-native product to pursue a listing from India.

Built on the YayEye Search Create Share Engine, TimeKrishna merges artificial intelligence, generative content design, and intelligent social networking in a way that redefines the consumer internet experience for emerging markets. The IPO is expected to provide capital for scaling the platform across India and Southeast Asia, while solidifying TechRaid Inc.'s cross-border growth strategy in the AI-driven consumer space.

"TimeKrishna is our thesis in motion: AI-first infrastructure, consumer-facing design, and market-native distribution, all layered into one global product narrative," said a spokesperson for TechRaid Inc. "This public listing marks the beginning of a new asset class AI-native social platforms; and we believe India is the ideal first market."

TimeKrishna, is purpose-built for the next billion users, enabling personalized digital interactions, adaptive communities, and generative content clusters. Its development has been accelerated through the YayEye platform (valued by GIM.cpa at $12 Billion), TechRaid's proprietary infrastructure designed for AI-native applications.
