What Are The Key Driving Factors For The Growth Of The Building Finishing Contractors Market?

The demographic trend in most countries is leaning towards an older population, thus driving a greater need for facilities adapted to seniors. For example, data from the World Health Organization (WHO), an esteemed governmental organization, predicts that from 2020 to 2050, the global population of individuals aged 80 or over is projected to rise threefold and hit 426 million. Additionally, by 2050, the number of individuals aged 60 and over is set to reach 2.1 billion, which is double the current figure. This necessitates alterations and improvements in housing and local areas for increased safety and inclusivity. Ease of access to local stores and city centers needs to be improved for the elderly population. Moreover, public transportation also requires modifications to cater to the growing demand from this demographic. As a result, there is likely to be a surge in the demand for the services of building finishing contractors in the forthcoming period.

What Are The Major Trends That Will Shape The Building Finishing Contractors Market In The Future?

Leading companies in the building finishing contractor market are concentrating on creating cutting-edge technology solutions, like user-friendly software specifically designed for rapid building construction that simplifies project management, increases accuracy, and boosts overall productivity. Software for quick building construction typically refers to digital instruments created to expedite and simplify construction management tasks. For example, Topcon, an engineering firm based in Japan, unveiled a software called Digital Layout in May 2023, intended to increase efficiency in the building construction sector. The software is suitable for both beginners and seasoned users, making the shift from traditional layout methods to digital processes easier. The software can be integrated with 3D lasers and works flawlessly with Autodesk Revit or AutoCAD for point file generation. It offers real-time reporting, support on multiple platforms including Windows and Android, and cloud connectivity via Topcon MAGNET Enterprise for convenient data sharing.
