In addition to the full continuum of care, Compassion Behavioral Health offers a blend of time-tested and cutting-edge treatment options. Alongside trusted therapy modalities such as Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) and

Dialectical Behavior Therapy (DBT), the center provides a wide range of innovative clinical and medical services, including Medication-Assisted Treatment (MAT), Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing (EMDR), Transcranial Magnetic Stimulation (TMS), and Spravato® (esketamine) for individuals struggling with treatment-resistant depression. These evidence-based therapies reflect the organization's commitment to providing comprehensive, individualized care that supports long-term recovery and emotional wellness.

"We are thrilled to partner with Optum to make our services more accessible to the communities we serve," said Ryan Needle, CEO of Compassion Behavioral Health. "This agreement reinforces our mission to provide compassionate, client-centered care without barriers, and helps ensure that more individuals can begin their healing journey with confidence and support."

With locations across Florida and a growing national presence, Compassion Behavioral Health is known for its personalized, intimate care and integrated treatment model that supports individuals facing mental health challenges, substance use disorders, and co-occurring conditions.

By joining the Optum network, Compassion Behavioral Health continues its commitment to reducing financial burdens for clients while maintaining the highest standards of clinical care and long-term recovery support.
