Young New Life

Young New Life

Self-Portrait

"In the painting, two kittens are playing at dawn and seem to try to contact each other, playing on the vibrant yellow-green grass. The sun has not fully risen, and the sky is still covered with a faint layer of darkness. This painting shows the beauty of young life. They are energetic and full of curiosity to try to contact strange peers, just like young people yearn for and fear friends"

Self-Portrait

This painting is a self-portrait. It shows how I see myself—imperfect, like a reflection in a broken mirror—but it's just a reflection; the real me still possesses strengths. What I want to express through this painting is that many teenagers are always preoccupied with their shortcomings, but I want to tell them that they still have their own shining qualities.

SKY Gallery & Art Center is a beacon of hope for those who want to represent themselves through art, inspiring many to do the same, SKY Gallery & Art Center continues to show love, compassion, and dedication to teaching artists all kind.
