-- Just days after the official announcement, the 30-Day AI Advantage Bootcamp from Tony

Robbins and Dean Graziosi is taking off worldwide. Thousands have already joined to build their own AI Clone System, a personal AI co-pilot designed to help them save time, simplify their work, and focus on what matters most.

This new hands-on experience was created to help people harness the power of AI without confusion or overwhelm. Participants are guided step by step to build an AI system that understands their goals, voice, and priorities. One that automates repetitive work, multiplies creative output, and helps them make smarter decisions in business and life.

"This isn't about learning another tool," said Graziosi. "It's about building a system that works for you, learns how you think, and gives you real time back. Most people are saving 15, 20, even 40 hours a week once they start applying what we teach."

Real Stories, Real Wins

From business owners to content creators, early participants are already seeing powerful results.

Austin, who runs a commercial lighting company, used to spend days creating quotes, contracts, and proposals. Now his AI Clone handles everything in hours, saving thousands in overhead and letting him take on more projects with confidence.

Galyn, a leadership coach, once spent 30 minutes preparing for every client call. Now, her Clone organizes notes, writes summaries, and drafts custom follow-ups in under five minutes. She's saving 10–15 hours each week and delivering five times more powerful sessions.

Bianca, an entrepreneur who was hesitant to use AI at all, took a chance and used it to organize the chaos in her mind. It helped her map out her dream ranch business, create her brand voice, and turn her ideas into a real plan. She says it saved her more than 20 hours a week and gave her peace of mind she hadn't felt in years.

"These stories are what this is all about," said Graziosi. "AI isn't here to replace people. It's here to amplify them, to free up their time, creativity, and energy so they can live and lead at a higher level."
