Ron Brunk Channels Life-Changing Feline Encounter into Soul-Stirring New Single

SHEPHERDSTOWN, WV, UNITED STATES, November 6, 2025

/EINPresswire.com/ -- The living world through his music and from asking questions that strike a chord and linger. But in May of 2024, Brunk experienced something extraordinary—an encounter that completely changed his life, bringing profound bonds, bold new undertakings, and an endless well of inspiration. Nine furry, feral felines appeared at his back door, peering through the glass and directly into his soul. It was as if they were looking for HIM, and he for THEM. As if he was always meant to be their fierce protector, their dedicated caregiver, their haven. Though there are still days of struggle, it seems as if the dark clouds have parted, and Brunk's life has been flooded with light, laughter, and a kind of companionship he never knew he was missing. Out of that renewal comes new music at its most inspired—direct from the heart, bursting with creativity, and written for those who understand just how deeply a cherished animal (or a few) can touch a sensitive, compassionate soul. Those nine precious kittens have transformed Ron Brunk, and now he couldn't imagine his life without them.

"Windowsill Cat" feels like what might happen if Cat Stevens and Ron Brunk joined forces—two prolific storytellers merging their genius to craft a soul-stirring, cinematic ode. The gentle acoustic sweeps of "Moonshadow" seem to echo through the opening verse, wrapping the soundscape in a blanket of intimacy, as if Brunk were watching his cats scamper and sprawl across every corner of his home. But as the song progresses, the signature Brunk intensity builds, layering soulful harmonies, percussive bursts, and haunting piano chords before plunging into a sea of orchestral strings that prowl with feline grace. He captures something in the quiet companionship of a windowsill cat—their steady, enigmatic presence offering a kind of serenity that transcends words, “wherever I roam, wherever I’m at.” His latest—and 37th—record, NOW IS THE NEW THEN, gifts fans with not one, not two, but three versions of this dreamy reverie—a chance to step inside the vivid scene: one of those eerie, windswept nights, raindrops clanging against the windowpane, and there, framed in shadow, the silhouette of a mysterious, watchful companion, gazing out at “all the cosmos standing still.”

Fans of “Mr. Hank” and Brunk’s ever-growing catalog of visuals starring his personality-packed quad squad will be delighted to discover a brand-new animated adventure—one that stretches the limits of imagination even further, capturing the wild, wonderous spirit of windowsill cats just like Brunk’s own. Designed once again from a collage of photos and video clips, the “Windowsill Cat” visual offers a much-needed escape from the “outrageous world” beyond the glass, transforming Brunk’s real-life feline friends into living works of art. The animated landscapes shift and shimmer—from luminous stained-glass mosaics to Mondrian-esque abstractions to sweet, storybook-style sketches. And of course, it wouldn’t be complete without Brunk himself—guitar in hand—appearing and fading with the scenes, seamlessly woven into the dreamlike animation. More than anything, it’s a kaleidoscopic love letter to his feline muses—part fantasy, part reflection, and all heart—purring with the warmth of someone who’s found their joy once again.
