performance of CME’s direct-to-site delivery and biomedical services. Under his leadership these services continually deliver customer experiences that are unmatched in the industry.

Wade Oliveira, Vice President of Distribution Operations: Wade has delivered comprehensive leadership across CME’s nationwide operations, overseeing logistics, distribution, and facility management. He is also a key driver of advancing warehousing strategy, expansion, and inventory control initiatives.

“These role advancements reflect the depth of talent within our organization,” said KC Meleski, President of CME. “Kelli, Daniel, and Wade have each played pivotal roles in supporting our growth and ensuring our customers receive the highest level of service. Their leadership will be instrumental as we continue expanding our reach and capabilities across the country.”

Kelli, Daniel, and Wade’s leadership will help CME remain well-positioned to continue to strengthen organizational alignment with the growth of the company. CME remains committed to helping ensure healthcare and life sciences organizations across the U.S. have access to the equipment and support they need to succeed.
