About Muffled Voices Festival:

The Muffled Voices Festival is the first international opera festival dedicated to chamber operas composed by women. The festival's second season, opening on November 22, 2025, at the Maryland Theatre in Hagerstown, MD, will feature the U.S. premiere of "Baruchs Schweigen" (Baruch's Silence) by Ella Milch-Sheriff, a highly acclaimed European composer.

"Baruchs Schweigen" is a one-act chamber opera that explores themes of inherited trauma, intergenerational silence, and the journey towards healing. The production, directed by Elizaveta Korneeva and conducted by Daiana Hoffmann, will feature distinguished soloists from around the globe.

The opera will be performed in German with English supertitles provided. After the show, audience members can enjoy a post-show reception and meet the artists and production team.

Muffled Voices Festival, launched in 2024, is a platform for showcasing chamber operas by
